II. Wind noise characteristics and reduction strategies

Wind noise can be debilitating for hearing device users. Dr. Chung has been systematically studying wind noise patterns in hearing aids with different characteristics (e.g., microphone modes, styles, vent options) to derive wind noise reduction strategies. These strategies can be adopted in hearing devices to enhance user performances.
Select Publication on the Topic

